At the evening meeting C. E. Brain-ard of Ogden was re-elected to the pres-idency. This was Mr. Brainard's third election to the position, and he has filled it with distinguished ability. Sun-day school workers are well pleased with the result of the convention, and all are hopeful of great prosperity dur-ing the year now beginning.

Afternoon Session.

The afternoon session was given over to the children, who rallied into the big edifice several hundred strong, and lisp-ed in the sweetest of infantile tones the good old hymos that have been chantchinese Sunday school excited intense interest and admiration among the youngsters when they marched upon the platform and sang one of the old-fashioned Methodist hymns. Then Mr. Wilkes gave one of his entertaining catechetic talks that elicited ready and original answers from the scholars in the front row. He showed his watch and asked what he had in his nocket; he was told that he had a watch. He asked what was in it; he was told it contained a mainspring.

An Unexpected Answer.

An Unexpected Answer.

He asked what it was good for without a mainspring, and a bright little girl told him it was good for nothing.

You are right, said the divine, it is good for nothing; it might be good for kindling wood, but not very. Then he asked what a pencil without lead was good for, and, instead of getting expected "good-for-nothing" answer, an original youngster of a syllogistic turn of mind shouted out: 'It would be good for kindling wood."

turn of mind shouted out: "It would be good for kindling wood."

Mr. Wilkes used these metaphors to convey to the young minds the idea that if they did not fulfill the chief end of man by glorifying God they would be good for nothing. If the bright youngster had been pressed for an opinion he would, no doubt still have maintained his "kindling wood" theory. Mr. Wilkes followed the catechising by the Biblical story of "The Ark of the Covenant." and the falling of the walls of Jericho, when it was carried round them. He exhorted the children to read the Bible and learn the wonderful stories and beautiful truths contained therein.

to the work of the association, and the motion was carried.

Yip Foo sang a solo, "Jeaus, I Come," His prominciation of the English language was almost faultless, and he showed fine appreciation of Caucasian music. Accompanied by five others of his countrymen, he then sang. "In The Shadow," Miss Mabel Jones was the accompanist of both numbers.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

About 150 members and friends of Silver Maple circle No. 108, Women of Silver Maple circle No. 105, Women of Woodcraft, passed a very endoyable evening at a social given in Odd Fellows' hall by that order last Friday. High five was the feature of the evening. Miss Maggie Russells was the happy winner of the ladies' first prize; Miss Ada Taylor carried off the consolation, and Miss Louie Louison won the gent's first prize, Mr. George Williams laying claim to the gent's consolation. After the games the guests all repaired to the banquet hall, where dainty refreshments were served. The happy throng broke up at midnight with many words of praise for those having the affair in charge. The success of the evening reflects great credit upon the committee, which was composed of the following from among Silver Maple's successful entertainers: Mrs. Annie F. Elicutt, Mrs. Eleanor B. Carter, Mrs. Annie Spencer, Mrs. Annie Frencester and Mrs. Sarah Francis.

Odd Fellows' hall yesterday afterneon. The first Sunday in December of each year is designated and dedicated as a day on which shall be recalled in a memorial service, by every lodge of Elks, the memories of the departed members. Accordingly the local branch of the nociety, which has been in existence in this city since last April, assembled in the lodge room at 3 o'clock to perpetuate the memory of 'Our Absent Brother' Dr. J. W. Smith, late of Castlegate, Utah, who died in Baltimore some six weeks ago.

The big hall was decorated with the national colors and tri-colored paper streamers, while the two big pairs of elk antiers, which hung upon the north and south walls of the room, were draped in crepe, as a mute reminder of the occasion of the gathering which was open to the general public. Some forty ladies and gentismen availed themselves of this privilege and were seated around the sides of the hall as the Grand theatre orchestra, under the direction of W. C. Coleman, rendered the voluntary and forty-four members of the lodge filed into the room and proceeded to make a circuit of it. Each one wore a sprig of forget-me-not in the lapel of his coat as an emblem of the sentiment of the day.

The speakers of the day were then introduced. The Rev. W. Daunt Scott prefaced his eulogy by the regret that the regular chapiain, Rev. Ellis Bishop, was unavoidably absent from the memorial service and that personally church duties called him away, hence his remarks would have to be brief. Mr. Scott affirmed in his short address that in these end of the century times much is said and read about the dryness and deadness of creeds, but that if they were analyzed they one and all point to the cultivation of brotherly love.

Impressive Memorial Thanksgiving Gluttons In Jail-De linquent Tax List.

linquent Tax List.

(Espectal Correspondences)

Vernal, Nov. 30.—Thanhegivirg evidently has a very peculiar effect on some people as several individuals were in such a hazy condition that some of them wound up in the city hastile. It is presumed their condition was due to over-cating as the saloons were closed all day, in order that the proprietors might repair to their respective closets and give thanks to a Divine Providence that dropped an occasional dime into their coffers.

County Treasurer Biankeenship has been busily engaged the past few days in getting out the delinquent tax list which has now been completed. There are about 200 names on the list. The amounts generally are small. Although in several districts the special school taxes were quite heavy, the list is one third smaller than in the year preceding.

Explosion of a Lamp at Mt. Pleasant.

(Special Correspondence.) Mt. Pleasant, Dec., 3.—A lamp ex-Mt. Pleasant, Dec. 3.—A lamp exploding in the pool and amusement rooms owned by Jens Gunderson, in the Cahoon saloon building, one night this week, came very near to starting a blaze that would have proven disastrous had it gained a good start. The lamp was suspended over the pool table in the front room where it exploded. It was picked up by Mr. Gunderson, who threw it at the glass doors in front, but iron bars across the doors prevented it going out. It was still blazing, and the doors were onened and the lamp kicked through them, but it broke before it reached the sidewalk and the oil was scattered all over the doors and part of the front of the building. The flames ran immediately all over the portions upon which the oil had been spilled, and it looked as though the entire front of the building would blaze in another instant, but the crowd pitched in with a will and soon extinguished it. Had it gotten under fair headway the whole block of business houses and possibly two more in its back would have gone up in smoke, as the wind was blowing a gale at the time and nothing would have stopped the fire. (Special Correspondence.) . Mt. Pleasant, Dec. 2,—An event Mt. Pleasant, Dec. L.—An event of Thanksgiving here somewhat out of the ordinary was a reunison of old soldiers at the home of Dr. W. W. Woodring. Representatives of four armies were present as follows: Dr. Woodring of the Confederate, and James Wilson and Abner Crane of the Federal army of the civil war; C. C. Rowe, a veteran of the Mexican war, and W. O. Ash of Uncle Sam's army in the Spanish-American war.

At the dinner the opening course was of the regulation army fare—pork and beans and hardtack; after this was disposed of for old-times' sake a regulation up-to-date. Thanksgiving dinner was enjoyed. The day was then pleasantly spent in exchanging reminiscent stories of the days on the battle fields and the old boys enjoyed it greatly.
